ON OUR COVER:

Jess Littleman Interviews Miss Gay WI-
USofA, the talented Josie Lynn.

*It's a typical Friday night at the bar. The drag show is about to start downstairs, and I'm looking for my final appointment of the day: Josie Lynn. I must've walked by him twice before someone at the bar who knew both of us pointed this guy out to me:
Short-cropped hair, wire-rimmed glasses, and a brown/gray/dark color suit ensemble. If it weren't for the two gold hoops hanging off each ear lobe, I'd swear he was in the wrong place. My boyfriend summed it up best later on: "He's kinda butch to be a drag queen, isn't he?" But make no mistake. Joel Duffrin, aka Josie Lynn, is an award winning performer. I had the pleasure of seeing him at the Paper Valley Hotel doing a Mary Poppins number for competition. Very entertaining. So, near the end of a long journey which ends in Dallas at the US of A finals, I talked to Josie Lynn.*

Josie, aka Joel, told me a little about his background.

Josie Lynn: I'm originally from Wausau. I've been performing in female impersonation for three years, and before that...for about two years I was performing as a male—as Joel. I also did a variety of things ranging from singing live to comedy. It was just crazy stuff. Before that, I was working on a cruise line. When I got back...that's sort of when I started my gay life.

PAST/OUT

BY DAVID BIANCO

April 8, 1974 (23 years ago this week): The membership of the American Psychiatric Association votes to remove homosexuality from its list of mental disorders.

How did homosexuality lose its official status as a mental illness?

In what was indisputably a key turning point in the struggle for gay and lesbian equality, the American Psychiatric Association experienced a tumultuous internal debate in late 1973 and early 1974, ending in the decision to remove homosexuality from the APA's list of mental disorders. The episode, whose lasting impact on the public perceptions of gay people has been tremendous, was a political saga and a public spectacle.

For early 1970s gays and lesbians, the "official" status of homosexuality as an illness listed in the APA's Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders was a pressing concern. The adjective "sick," along with "sinful" and "criminal" formed a triumvirate of labels that posed significant barriers to both gay self-esteem and civil equality.

As early as the 1960s, some gay men and lesbians were beginning to publicly reject the sickness label as insulting to a group of people who mostly led happy, healthy lives tainted only by prejudice. In addition, the work of non-gay researchers like Evelyn Hooker, Alfred Kinsey, and Judd Marmor lent credibility to such claims. But starting in 1970, an orchestrated campaign by gay and lesbian liberationists was the spark that convinced many psychiatrists to finally reevaluate homosexuality's official status. One of the first "zaps" against the psychiatric status quo took place at the 1970 APA convention, when a bearded man in a red dress grabbed the microphone from anti-gay psychiatrist Irving Bieber and shouted, "We've listened to you long enough; you listen to us. We're fed up with being told we're sick. You're the ones who are sick. We're gay and we're proud." Other gay liberationists adopted the chant, "Stop it! You're making me sick!"

The next year, demonstrations continued, with long-time gay activist Frank Kameny disrupting the event's convocation by shouting "Psychiatry is the enemy incarnate!" into a microphone, and lesbian and gay activists protesting the inclusion of an aversion therapy booth in the convention hall. But in addition, the APA (in hopes of pre-empting pro-gay demonstrations) scheduled a panel at its conference entitled "Lifestyles of Non-Patient Homosexuals," which gay activists soon began to refer to as "Lifestyles of Im-Patient Homosexuals." For the first time, psychiatrists at their annual convention did not just talk about homosexuals - they listened to them as well.

At the 1972 convention, another panel was held, but this one included an unusual spectacle - a gay psychiatrist, wearing a wig and rubber mask, with a microphone rigged to disguise his voice. "Dr. Henry Anonymous" spoke to 500 of his colleagues attending the session about his experiences in the closet, and observers were moved by his talk, however farcical the circumstances.

By the 1973 convention in Honolulu, more and more psychiatrists publicly supported deleting homosexuality from the diagnostic manual, but significant opposition remained. The breakthrough came with a compromise proposed by a heterosexual psychiatrist named Robert Spitzer, who proposed that homosexuality per se be deleted, but a category called "Sexual Orientation Disturbance" be retained, to cover those lesbians and gays who were unhappy in their orientation and wanted to change. Although many gay activists found the new category insulting, they made a tactical decision to support the compromise, declare victory, and ignore the lingering diagnostic category.

On December 15, 1973, the APA's Board of Trustees unanimously approved Spitzer's compromise, and went a step further by calling for the decriminalization of homosexuality and the passage of civil rights protections for gays and lesbians. It was an unprecedented endorsement of what gays had been asking for by one of the very groups they had seen as their oppressors. Gays and lesbians had just begun to celebrate their victory when a reversal seemed all too possible. Bieber and his fellow anti-gay colleague Dr. Charles Socarides (whose son Richard is now Bill Clinton's top gay aide) invoked a procedural maneuver that would bring the diagnostic change before a vote of the APA's 20,000 members. Before the mail-in vote, gay activists from the National Gay Task Force orchestrated and paid for a letter (whose gay funding was not noted) from all three candidates for the APA presidency, as well as other leading psychiatrists, to the entire APA membership, urging them to support the board's position in order to avoid embarrassing their profession.

The results were announced on April 8: 58 percent of those voting supported the board's decision, and 37 percent opposed it, while the rest abstained. It was a clear vindication of the idea that homosexuality per se is not a mental illness - but at the same time, it meant that thousands of doctors still treated (as many still continue to treat) gays and lesbians as inherently sick individuals.

Travelogue: Nashville

by Sue Zip

Travelogue: Nashville (part 2)

Forget everything in Nashville. Forget the Grand Ol' Opry, forget that this is Music City USA, forget anything else we did on our trip. We were here to see the Daemon Record Showcase! This is Amy Ray's label, which she launched to support diversity and indie bands. We arrived at Douglas Corner early (very early) expecting a huge crowd and line (this is Amy Ray of the Indigo Girls!) and ended up killing a couple hours wandering the street. They have a very nice gas station right nearby that has coffee and we sat on the curb awhile, soaking in the city. Back inside, we met up with our Nashville online friend again, and she introduced us to a couple from Atlanta and we all chatted away while the place slowly filled and the bands set up.

I guess I hadn't realized we were in a special place until I overheard a man telling his girlfriend in awe "This place is a legend..." and reading her the signatures on the photos on the wall. Douglas Corner is one of those rare places where musicians can actually interact with a small audience, and where big names are discovered. They also serve these awesome little pizzas on a pastry crust...

The show was late getting started. We learned later that they all either flew or drove threw tornado weather to get there, so they arrived pretty shell-shocked. The first band to kick it off was Lift, an awesome pop group (new album coming out!) and yeah, quite cute. Another online friend was there who introduced us to the band, and we babbled enthusiastically about how awesome they are. They were very gracious and sweet (and cute). Rock-A-Teens pumped it up, and Bellaluna played next, a cool jazzy Santana-type sound with awesome percussion and a fun style. Reversing Hour wailed with hot guitar licks. The last band of the evening was Danielle Howle and the Tantrums, holy cow what a funny, delightful, incredible group!! I'd have to say this was my favorite of the night. Danielle is tiny but is packed with humor and energy. And talent!

Did I mention that Amy Ray was introducing the bands? That there were only about 80 people in the place? That she sat two feet from us while Danielle played? That we spoke with her?

The funny thing about the Amy Ray Presence was that she was secondary to the Daemon bands that evening, by her own request. We had called weeks earlier to verify that she would MC the event, to be told that they could not confirm that fact. That night, I stood at the bar with the Bellaluna group and Amy Ray to my right as the bartender took a phone call, telling them pointedly that "it is her record label, I can't confirm she's here". I also overheard Amy telling a woman that this night wasn't about her, it was about the bands. It made us very hesitant to fawn over her. One woman gushed to us, "Ohmigod, I was in line behind her in the bathroom, and I realized she sat there right before I did!"

While being ever-resistant to Celebrity Giddiness, I must admit she carries a presence with her. Although I sat close enough to elbow her if I'd wished (no, I didn't!) I was in awe of her proximity. In awe of her powerful vocals and string-breaking intensity. Of the strength of her convictions and her refusal to be complacent. Of her humanity.

Jess Littleman Interviews Josie Lynn

Jess Littleman: When you worked for the cruise ship, were you performing?

Josie: No, actually. I was a photographer. You were in people's faces all week. By the end of the week you've had every passenger six times.

Jess: And half of them love you; half of them hate you! (Both laugh) So, when you said you "...started your gay life"...

Josie: Before I left for the ship I was living a straight man's life. The ship was a way for me to actually be who I was...it was where I came out. I then came home and told mom and dad, and they've been supporting me ever since. They've been real good with that.

Jess: That's good. Over the last three years, what titles have you accumulated?

Josie: When I first started, it was Miss Gay Wausau. It was a 'closed' pageant at the time, which means if they have three contestants from that area, they would close it to the rest of the state. They had two, they needed a third—they talked me into running. Said "Why don't you do it?" I'm like, "All right!"

I had help. Miss Brandy Wiles was one of my biggest [advocates]. She helped me with my hair, got [someone] to do my makeup, put together a talent and helped me with my ballroom gown—the whole bit.

When they announced who the winner was, it was Josie Lynn. Now, my reaction wasn't (voice jumps up an octave), "Oh, yeah I won!" It was, "Oh, crap! Now what'll I do?" (Laughs)

So, that entitled me to go to state. I invested a little more time, and a little more money. I started doing my own makeup, I got a hair stylist to help me out with that. I invested money in clothes, in shoes, in makeup...and when I ran for State, I got first runner up.

Nationals was a great learning experience for me. What I did [then was] take a year off from pageants, and just performed for a year. I developed who Josie Lynn is. I worked on different makeup, different hair, different numbers, different this and that—the whole bit.

Then I ran for Miss Gay Appleton, and won. I ran against Vicki C. from Racine. I took that title just by the skin of my teeth. She almost got me there! I ran for state, and took the title of Miss Gay Wisconsin.

Jess: And now, from State, you're going again to the Nationals.

Josie: Yes.

Jess: Tell us what's involved in going to Nationals as opposed to a local or state competition.

Josie: Since I've been to Nationals before, I got to learn, like I said. I got to see different types of talent numbers, [and see] what money, what time, what effort was really put into a National level. [I said to myself], "OK, if I come back here, I'm going to really have to do by best...I got sponsorships from people to help me out with the money end...and my biggest thing is my time—that's what I really worked on.

I'm always trying out something different. I'm not trying to do (searches for the right word) "the norm." I always try to "push it"—do something out of the ordinary. The first year I ran, I didn't wear a beaded gown—found out that didn't help!

Now, my reaction wasn't, "Oh, yeah I won!" It was, "Oh, crap! Now what'll I do?"

(Laughs) That didn't work out to my advantage.

You gotta learn how to play the game, I guess. In between the lines of the rules, it kind of states what they want. (Gestures) They want this, they want this type of look, they want that, and if you really want to get where you want to go, you really have to do "that"...

Jess: Can you give us any details of what you're going to be doing for your show?

Josie: My performance is going to be what I did for State. I did a mixture of The Lion King and Cats...It's been revamped—the music has been slightly remixed, a new dance has been choreographed, backup dancers have been added, new costumes and a new prop. I worked out the concept; now I'm adding to it.

Josie and I talked for a while about what it's like for her as a performer.

Josie: (Laughs) [It's a great] compliment when you get hit on by lesbians. That happens somewhat. Let's see...When I first started, being talked into running for Miss Wausau...just to say "OK! I can do this!" It wasn't even a challenge for me. When I found out what I could do, I took it more seriously.

A lot of funny things have happened on the road. I traveled a lot with Vicki C. When [we] get together, it's like [Chris Farley and David Spade in the movie] Tommy Boy. It's memorable.

Jess: When you took your year off to perform, where did you go?

Josie: I went statewide. Being originally from Wausau, then...Racine, I hit that circuit. The Pivot Club when that was open—I performed there a lot. I've had the chance to come up to ZA's a couple of times. Sass's—I've performed there. So I've had the chance to perform in front of a lot of different crowds, a variety of crowds. That helped me learn, because each crowd likes something a little different. I like to cater to the crowd I'm performing for.

Jess: What's a favorite little backstage story you'd like to share with everyone?

Josie: Oh my gosh. She'll kill me but it's a great story! Vicki is a former Ms.—she is a real woman. She's real endowed in the chest area and when I was first starting to perform, I was helping her dress at the Mad Hatter. We were putting her in a beaded cocktail dress. What ended up happening was (motioning to the chest area) I didn't get her in there. I'm used to queens and used to fake breasts. So, we're trying to get her in there and they're not fitting. I make a fist and I start to punch one of her breasts into her dress! Well, she has great reflexes, and she slugged me! I said, "Oww! That hurt!" and she said, "Well, that hurt, too!"

Anyway, she was getting upset. "I know this fit me before!" She said, "Turn me around and check the zipper." I finished unzipping it and it fit her nicely! (Laughs)

Jess: Do you have a particular performance that sticks out in your mind?

Josie: My first State performance. When I ran two years ago when Sasha Mitchell won and I won first runner up, I did a mix of Mary Poppins and Liza Minelli.

Jess: Was this the competition held at the Paper Valley in Appleton? I saw that one!

Josie: Yeah? It was the first performance that I put all of my energy and effort into. Afterwards, I was sooo exhausted and panting, that I couldn't get air and I almost fainted. I was excited, I was happy I was crying because I had a standing ovation and I had never seen that before. That was one of the greatest thrills of my life. My parents were there...my father was crying, my mother was crying. "That's our...daughter!" They were two very proud parents...

Josie also wanted to share this special message with his fans and friends:

If there are people out there who want to get into performing, whether they are male, female or female impersonators, don't give up. Don't get discouraged. Definitely go out there and have fun. The best advice...is, if you're not having fun onstage, then don't do it. If you're having a good time, then they see that, and they have a good time with you!

I wish Joel/Josie the best of luck in Dallas and hope to see her performing again soon.

Patrons of Napalese Lounge (Green Bay) Raises $1,596 for Center Project Clients

Center Project clients are the beneficiaries of a $1,596 contribution made possible by Dan Senglaub, and the efforts of Nancy Garrison, Ann Eiler and patrons of Napalese Lounge. Begun with a financial gift from Dan, various charity events organized by Napalese Lounge made the $500 seed donation grow by an additional $1,096 which will be designated for client emergency fund usage in the Green Bay area.

The results of these fundraising events come as no surprise to Stan Kocos, Executive Director of Center Project. "I've said it many times before at meetings throughout this state that the gay community in Green Bay and the surrounding area is and has long been a leader in supporting services to persons infected and affected by HIV and AIDS."

Get "Bjorn Again" at PrieFest '97 Abba-esque Pop Group to Take Milw by Storm

"Abba will not get back together - it is impossible. You will have see Bjorn Again," said 'Stig' Andersson, manager of the Swedish pop super-group Abba.

The world has been fascinated with the melodies made famous by four Swedes back in the 1970s. Now, that same excitement is moving around the world again, headed for Wisconsin PrideFest '97, in the form of pop delight Bjorn Again, a band often times confused with a similar group called Abba. Bjorn Again will take center stage at PrideFest on Sat., June 7.

"We're very excited to have Bjorn Again world-tour coming to Wisconsin PrideFest," says PrideFest co-director Mike Hall. "You'll think you were back in the '70s or part of the cast of 'Priscilla, Queen of the Desert' when you see this outlandish and outstanding music group."

Performing over 1200 LIVE shows in over 30 countries world-wide, including Gay Pride London 1996, Bjorn Again is one of the most popular revival bands of the decade.

Daddy & Daddy's Boy Contests and Parties!

Expect this party weekend to out perform last year's major success. When it started as a Daddy Contest on a Saturday nite, I am sure the organizers didn't realize it would turn out to be the Wisconsin leather event of the year.

Here is the schedule of events for the weekend.

Friday, April 25, 6:30 -8:30 PM, Meet and Greet at South Water Street Docks; 10 PM, Daddy's Boy contest, The 1100 Club. After later, an "invitation only" late night party.

Saturday, April 26, 2- 4 PM, auction at The 1100 Club. 7 PM dinner at The M&M Club. 10 PM Daddy contest at The 1100 Club, again followed by an "invitation only" late night party.

I don't know prices, but I am sure it is like last years, so much per event with a discounted weekend rate for all/most events. A word of caution - observe the cut off times and numbers if you want to enter and/or attend either contest, go to the dinner or late nite parties. Don't try at the last minute, you could end up on the outside trying to look in. All information, tickets etc. are available from Argonaut and Castaway members, The 1100 Club and S.W.S. Docks. Both of these bars have traditionally supported this major leather event.

Save me a seat, I'll be at Docks boy toy looking. Warning to other dirty old men, don't get near my elbows when I am shopping.

Pride Fest, June 6-8, Argonauts and Castaways Beer Tent.

From: Thom/Argonauts

The Argonauts and the Castaways have agreed to another joint venture. We will be doing a beer stand at PrideFest. The two clubs will man the booth throughout the event, very labor intensive.

Proceeds to be split, I assume. Details have not been formalized.

Thanks, Thom, for info. First time I've known you be short of words.

Just kidding. Actually, got a later report about the beer stand when I sat in on a Condo secession where Her Leadership, also a Castaways member, indicated the two clubs are hosting the stand with the understanding that the money you can make is rather limited. Probably work out to something like slightly paid volunteers. Besides the good feeling you will have from making money for PrideFest, you can get a good feeling inside. If you need another volunteer, I am available after the parade.

Also at that same Condo gathering, it was alleged, a certain person is less than amused that these two clubs are doing the beer tent. And being vocal about it.

Another popular event in Milwaukee, (cue the trumpets) Ms O'Possum Queen Contest. Word has it the new Ms Possum Queen will be crowned at PrideFest. You don't want to miss this. The fund raising functions are fun. Like the chicken shitting contest &/or bingo with dachshund races at M&M. Mama Roux's, The Ball Game (for that matter everywhere) gets real zanny.

You have to feel really good about this event. Again, little did anyone realize that an off-handed comment like "you couldn't win a possum contest", would create an event that last year raised over $22 thousand for charities.

From: Russ/Argonauts

We have been busy coordinating everything with the Castaways for our joint run. The Northwoods improvement group met on March 22 to check out what was needed before the run. We are busy updating, combining mailing lists and pulling together everything needed for this joint venture.

Paul K. is being secretive with the menu. We'll all have to diet again when it's over. As always, great food, and too much.

Dottie has come up with more and better ideas to decorate her Veranda looking for the right Veranda attire. Something about finding the right shoes. She will be contacting Ma for some ideas. Maybe something with a leather ankle lace.

Hey, Russ, heard the egg fund raiser was a healthy success. What's this I heard about a after-hours breakfast?? Keep me posted. Who the hell is Dolly??

In the rumor that ain't no rumor department. The new leather bar, according to the promoter/owner Paul B. (not sure which) painters, plasterers and the like are on the job as we speak. I know one person who has been asked to manage it. Take it from there.

Metal by Bobby and Jerry, Jerry, Mr. SE Wis Leather a welder and metal worker along with long time buddy and fellow Oberon, Bobby, are marketing custom made heavy duty restraints, chain suspenders, arm bands, etc. They will even make cages for the pup(s) in your life. If you want to get in touch with them, ask for them at The 1100 Club, especially at an Oberon Club night.

While on the subject of The Oberons, after the Wreck Room (their former home bar) closed last August, they had a series of fund raisers for the Christmas Club for Children With AIDS entitled Homeless in Milwaukee, in which they raised $2308.60 for their cause(s) by doing bar/club nights in different bars like Mama Roux's, Just Us, etc. These bars, not as such "leather bars," extended a warm welcome and really supported their cause. The Mama Roux's regulars donated many prizes for the event.

It was fun and they plan to do it again next fall, even though they are no longer homeless. They have chosen, as have the Castaways, The 1100 Club as their home bar.

The 1100 Club is not a "dyed in the wool leather bar," but like so many other bars, go out of their way to make the leather folks feel as welcome as everyone else.

MAY 17- OBERONS BUS TRIP/CRAWL to Chicago, hitting the bars from The Cell Block to Touche's. Tickets $25, refreshments on the bus. Get you tickets and more information from an Oberon or at The 1100 Club.

June 19-22, Acorn X. Oberons 10th anniversary run is a four dayer. It is hard to believe that it has been ten years since that fateful evening in a south side basement, when a slight majority faction of the Beer Town Badgers managed to suspend the constitution and by laws, to boot Matt V out and then gave the boot to Matt's lover, all around nice guy, the president, Bill J. You talk about a farce.

This, in turn, caused a massive resignation. About half the membership quit and with some friends, started the Oberons a short time later. The name and theme came about from a cross word puzzle clue, "King of the Fairies" who was Oberon, (Shakespearean character). Needless to say, after Bill was made Pathfinder (aka President), Matt became Titaina (Oberon's wife).

Those of us who remember Mattie, aka Vanna, do so with fondness. In spite of his in-your-face attitude and ability to ruffle feathers, he had a heart of pure gold and did a lot of good for the Leather Community in his brief life.

In that same 10 years, The Beer Town Badgers went defunct after another power play, this time with the cookie jar. Another club popped up and then closed down. It was a real mess and ended up in court - It was too bad, for the controlling greed of one, left a bad taste in a lot of good folks' craws.

I could rattle on for days, maybe more next time.

Before I forget, if you can get on the Oberons mailing list for their quarterly newsletter, The Royal Herald, do. You will enjoy it. John W., I like your writing. Mark, publisher of Quest, should talk on you about taking over my job. Hint. Hint. Yes, looking forward to finding my replacement. I have bigger fish to fry.

New e mail address for the Unicorns: Unicorns@mailbag.com or Latnsmbay@aol.com. Their newsletter late due to computer malfunction.

Write this down -May 1 - 4, The 1100 Club Anniversary Weekend. May 10, Oberons Club nite. May 17, Oberons bar crawl to Chicago. Memorial day Weekend 22 - 26. IML in Chicago.
