THE WIZARD OF OZ there's no place like home... review by Paul Masterson

The Skylight Music Theatre continues its fairy tale and fantasy themed 2014-15 season with a rare production of L. Frank Baum's The Wizard of Oz. Like many of artistic director Viswa Subbaraman's repertoire, the staging is a first for the Skylight. We all know the 1939 Technicolor film version. In a broader interpretation, it's about self-discovery, tolerance, and the loving safety and security of "home." For the LGBT community it has become a parable of its struggle for equality. Perhaps no other Oz character embodies the "gay" role than the Cowardly Lion. His signature song includes reference to being a "sissy" and a "dandy lion." He eventually finds his courage. The Scarecrow, too, delivers a subliminal message when he suggests "some go both ways." And, the Tin Man, well, he's just sentimental. All of this and more is captured in the Skylight's production.

Naturally, both in audience expectation and direction, there may be a tendency to revisit the film version. Here there may be some of that. But, smart casting, clever special effects and the vigorous and jazzy big band sound by a 10 member orchestra lead by music director Leslie B. Dummer make this OZ a new and exciting experience.

From Dorothy's opening rendition of "Over the Rainbow" to her return to Kansas, Susan Wiedmeyer gives a truly engaged and wonderful performance. She manages to be child-like yet resolute in her quest. Her vocals are nuanced, sincere and moving. The gangly and dangly Ryan Cappleman plays the Scarecrow as if the role had been written for him. Doug Clemens' Tin Man and Andreas Varela's Lion are both charming and sympathetic. All give well controlled comedy to their characters and sovereignty to their singing. Liz Norton plays the Wicked Witch and the spinster Almira Gulch with tempered wickedness and Susan Spencer brings earthy can-do to Auntie Em and a delightful airy goodness to the good witch Glinda. Rick Richter as The Wizard and Professor Marvel gives a very honest human touch to his bluster. Finally, Christopher Elst, as the Guard and Uncle Henry, rounds out the cast with swagger tinged with sweetness. Two different dogs play Toto during the run. On opening night, Hillie stole a scene or two.

The Skylight's production wizardry comes into play to underpin the performers' craft. The show's fairy tale effect rests in the lighting and set designs (both by Peter Dean Beck) that bring us though the scenes like illustrations in a storybook. The costuming (by Kristy Leigh Hall) offers enchanted singing flowers, crows, flying monkeys and curious, haz mat suited castle guards. Technical tricks include a very clever Munchkin realization. Pam Kriger's choreography includes an exuberant Jitterbug number that was excluded from the film version.

This is a perfect family show with an adult message that should put you in the mood to enjoy being home for the holidays.

GAMMA celebrates St. Nick's

Milwaukee GAMMA, the city's oldest LGBT social organization, celebrates its annual Holiday Party at This Is It, Saturday, December 6 from 1pm to 5pm. The event features a pot luck buffet, White Elephant gifts, and a special appearance by St. Nick himself. A slide show featuring GAMMA event photos by Paul Masterson will run during the party.

GAMMA president Bim Florek announced a special invitation to prospective new members. "We'd like to invite anyone to join GAMMA and enjoy their first GAMMA party. Anyone purchasing a membership (annual dues are $36) at the Holiday Party will enjoy an extended 18 month membership through June 2016. Like other GAMMA members, they'll also receive a pair of drink tickets for the party," Bim said.

Recognized as Southeast Wisconsin's premier

LGBT social and recreational group, GAMMA holds year round activities. Originally founded as a touch football group in 1978, GAMMA evolved over the decades. Ever expanding social, recreational and cultural profile, it now offers monthly parties, cocktail hours, hiking, bowling, biking and camping, as well as game and card nights, a dining out group, theatre nights, a cooking group, an annual 4th of July picnic, and a wide variety of cultural and sports excursions.. They also staff a Health & Wellness Area booth at Milwaukee PrideFest and participate in the festival's Volleyball Tournament. "GAMMA has over 125 members and its events reflect the wide range of our members' interests. Any member can post on our Facebook page and announce an event and invite others to join in. Whether it's a game of cribbage or a trip to the Milwaukee Art Museum or the Bristol Renaissance Faire or a day of antiques, it's all about finding fun and like-minded company to share time together," Bim explained. "We have organized activities or impromptu get-togethers. And, everyone is welcome," he added.

New members attending the GAMMA Holiday Party are encouraged to bring a White Elephant gift and a "dish-to-pass."

This Is It is located at 418 East Wells Street on Milwaukee's lower east side.

ONE OF THE LONGEST ENGAGEMENTS ON RECORD

On November 30th, Ross Walker and Erv Uecker ended one of the longest engagements on record as they were legally married on their 57th anniversary. Their wedding, performed at Pilgrim United Church of Christ, Grafton, was attended by several hundred people. Originally planned as a small private ceremony, with the encouragement of their minister, the Rev. Franz Rigert, it became a church wide celebration for the 800 member congregation. It was also the last wedding to be performed at Pilgrim as Pastor Franz will be leaving at Christmas, having recently been elected as the Wisconsin Conference Minister, overseeing 220 congregations.

Ross and Erv have been long time activists in the Milwaukee LGBT Community. Both have volunteered at the BESTD Cline since 1985 and still serving. They were also the original founders of the Milwaukee LGBT Community Center, calling its first exploratory meetings and funding its origins.

They are currently residents of Alexian Village of Milwaukee, where they share a spacious apartment. Erv, an ordained minister, has conducted worship at Alexian and also at their beloved church home, Pilgrim UCC.

PERFECT HARMONY MEN'S CHORUS Presents "Festivus (For the Rest of Us)" An Alternative Holiday Concert December 12 & 14

Marking its 18th annual winter concert, Perfect Harmony Men's Chorus is set to display a unique twist on the tradition of holiday choral music. The concert is based on the parodic secular holiday Festivus, a respite from the commercialism and societal pressures that can often accompany the winter holiday season. As made popular in an episode of the sitcom Seinfeld, Festivus has its own traditions as the vocal "Airing of Grievances," displays of "Feats of Strength," its own "Festivus Miracles," and especially the unadorned, aluminum Festivus pole. Perfect Harmony will celebrate with musical selections that explore the holiday's more serious themes, such as forgiveness and self-acceptance, while also maintaining a balance with more light-hearted material, reflecting the comedic origins of Festivus. In abandoning many of the standard holiday music conventions, Perfect Harmony presents a wide-ranging, sometimes moving, always entertaining set of songs. It is sure to be unlike any other holiday concert you will attend this season.

"Festivus (For the Rest of Us)" will be performed at the First United Methodist Church in downtown Madison, Wisconsin on Friday, December 12, 7:30 pm, as well as on Sunday, December 14, 3:00 pm. Admission to the concerts is $20 per ticket, which can be reserved online at <http://www.perfectharmonychorus.org>, or purchased at the door.

On second thought... the Holidays

Opinion by Paul Masterson

I know Thanksgiving is already a distance memory. But, I hope you have a good one. I did. I went to a friend's and had a wonderful dinner with his parents and grandmother, watched some football and a couple of movies. The turkey was delicious. As far as I'm concerned we can start spring now.

But, we've got months to go before the grass greens up. It's that time of year again when we charge headlong into the fray of the holidays. Whether Christmas, Hanukkah, Winter Solstice, or Kwanzaa, it means lights, decorations, holiday parties, and lots of presents. With all that self-indulgent extravagance, it really is a made-for-gays season. Besides, any occasion involving edible logs sounds pretty gay to me, although perhaps, for dignity's sake, we should call them "Bouche Noel", even if they're made of cheese. An ornament fetishist friend already has three trees up, each weighed down by dozens and dozens thematically coordinated decorations. Then there's Black Friday, mall mayhem, and those chipmunks incessantly singing carols over and over. For me, it's all too much.

The other annoying thing about the season is the cascade of end-year-giving letters we'll all get. Among the glittery cards, bank calendars, and bills, inevitably there are those desperate pleas for money. But maybe we should open those (at least the ones from LGBT organizations) and read them. It's an embarrassing reality but straight people donate more to gay causes than gay people do. Perhaps it's our learned behavior of fending for ourselves. We've learned that over the years. Even though we've achieved certain levels of equality thanks to the efforts of LGBT political and social advocacy, often propelled by straight support, we still seem to have an outsider, loner attitude.

Granted our community often seems disjointed. We can be our own worst enemies in that regard. The LGBT acronym is a strange bed-fellows jumble and, like any family, we have our differences. Still, we all have profited from the efforts of those obsessive volunteers who, by their tireless efforts, have impacted our lives in ways that we often take for granted.

Whether you give to an individual arts or athletic group, a social or political organization, or one of the major funds or foundations, your contribution will impact the greater good. You may not see the positive change immediately so don't be impatient. But remember, just a few months ago, LGBT Wisconsinites did not enjoy marriage equality. That victory was not only achieved by those who fought for that particular cause. Anyone and everyone who was OUT and about made that change possible. Straight people did not suddenly think marriage equality was a wonderful thing. They only rallied behind us and supported our rights when they got to know LGBT people. They got to know LGBT people through our sports, arts, theatre, gay-straight alliances, PrideFest and all the other groups that create the public face of our community.

So, please donate to one of our many non-profits. They need the kindness and generosity of friends and strangers to continue our LGBT struggle. We're not quite there yet and our gains are more tenuous than we might think. Happy Holidays and Thanks for your Support!

Camp, camp and more camp in StageQ's CHRISTMAS WITH THE CRAWFORDS!

Do you love Mommie Dearest? Have you ever wanted to see Joan Crawford ridiculed, teased and insulted? How about Joan Crawford and Gloria Swanson in a slap-fest? Well, look no further! Christmas with the Crawfords opens December 5th, 2014 and runs through Saturday, December 20th on the Drury Stage at the Bartell Theatre.

Christmas with the Crawfords is a hilarious tribute to Hollywood's "Golden Era" set during the infamous 1940's Christmas Eve live radio broadcast of Joan Crawford and her children from their Brentwood home. Christmas with the Crawfords, created by Richard Winchester and written by Mark Sargent, originated in San Francisco in 1993, and has since delighted packed houses from San Francisco and LA to New York. The story takes place in Joan Crawford's living room circa 1944, where she has scheduled a live interview with Hedda Hopper in a desperate bid for publicity in hopes of saving her career. Joan's plan is foiled, however, when numerous Hollywood icons drop by to steal the spotlight, including Judy Garland, Carmen Miranda, the Andrews Sisters, Ethel Merman and of course Bette Davis as "Baby Jane". And when Joan's adoring children take the stage it becomes clear why Christmas with the Crawfords is called "the mother of all campy holiday musicals". Directed by Michael Bruno, with musical direction by Lizzie Hansen and choreography by Lyn Pilch, Heidi Hakseth, Angenette Stacer Spalink and Remy Fernandez-O'Brien.

NEW ON DVD The Dark Place By Glenn Bishop

The demands from Glenn's cinematic circle were simple enough. First, Glenn was to choose a film that didn't involve reading and that demand potentially extended to British films which were to be closely monitored. Given the number of recent evenings devoted to international cinema including last month's sexy Israeli film, Snails in the Rain, even Glenn could see the fairness in this request.

The second request proved even more daunting; not only was there to be no "reading," Glenn was to choose a film featuring a sexy gay twenty-something protagonist possessing hyperthymesia, a rare medical condition, one in which individuals can recall almost every day of their lives in near perfect detail.

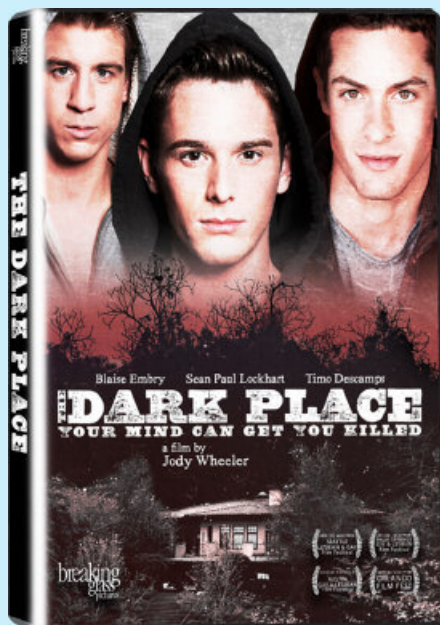

What luck for Glenn, who just happened to have gotten a screening copy of The Dark Place, a dark and stormy new thriller starring Sean Paul Lockhart (aka Porn Star Brent Corrigan).

The enigmatic Keegan Dark (Blaise Embry) is the at the film's center. Long estranged from his affluent family, Keegan enlists cute Belgian boyfriend Wil (Timo Descamps) to join him in paying his mother Celeste (Shannon Day) a flying birthday visit. Still, surely something isn't quite right; his mother's birthday having been the month before.

How then, mused Glenn, had someone with perfect memory forgotten his mother's birthday? How, indeed!

Upon returning to the family home after a two-year absence, Keegan is plagued by the ghosts of past memories as well as by the decidedly flesh & blood Adrian (Andy Copeland), his mother's brand new husband and Jake (the above mentioned Sean Paul Lockhart), Keegan's nearly always shirtless new step-brother.

It is perhaps not particularly surprising that Keegan gets off on the wrong foot with his new family Keegan and Wil have, after all, just walked into the home Jake shares with his father Adrian and Adrian's new wife unannounced. In the minds of some, Jake encountering Keegan (and Wil) for the first time with a baseball bat in hand isn't entirely unrealistic.

That Keegan takes an immediate dislike to Jake is evident but is he just being paranoid?

In fact, Jody Wheeler's entertaining if often convoluted screenplay has Keegan lead moviegoers on a right merry dance. Surely fuelled by his dislike of Jake, Keegan is convinced that his mother is in danger. Neither she, nor admittedly Glenn, is particularly persuaded by Keegan, however. Celeste prefers to be convinced of the devotion of her husband of six-months; well, of course she does.

Nor is she likely to begin doubting her new state of marital bliss when, entirely out of nowhere, Keegan attacks Jake as he whiles away a pleasant afternoon with Celeste, happily drying a few wine glasses and singing the odd bit of opera.

Then again, poor Keegan didn't bash in his own head whilst in the wine cellar nor is the near fatal mix up at the hospital merely an accident.

If you oh-so loyal Quest readers find this all rather confusing, so too were those gentlemen

Buy it, Rent it, or forget it...

Ever so sheepishly, Glenn must confess to being unfamiliar with recent films featuring Sean Paul Lockhart, the once and current porn star Brent Corrigan. The result, perhaps, being that Glenn proved quite surprised at how little the now beefy, muscular Lockhart resembled his charming Stan the Merman role in the otherwise excruciatingly awful Another Gay Sequel.

As entertainingly menacing as Lockhart's Jake undoubtedly is, The Dark Place in fact rests unsettlingly on Blaise Embry's performance and Wheeler's wobbly screenplay. In early scenes, there's a nice banter between Keegan and Timo Descamps' criminally adorable Wil, so why does Keegan continue to keep him in the dark? And yes, Glenn had to use that word. Why, too, is Wil so determined to stick by his complicated, uncommunicative boyfriend?

Once mother's in a coma, The Dark Place settles into a neat entertaining little thriller. There may be some huge leaps of logic, there are plenty in fact, but which Glenn only became aware of on a second viewing. Allison Lane is delightful as Sheriff Timmer, blissfully unaware that the "woman's touch" she so proudly brings to the job (brownies, indeed) won't amount to a hill of beans in a gay thriller such as The Dark Place.

The Dark Place is a must for Sean Paul Lockhart enthusiasts and fun for anyone looking for a sexy gay thriller, sans subtitles.

Just the facts...

The Dark Place has a swift 87 minute running time and is in English. The Dark Place is available on DVD. SRP: $24.95

For those interested in seeing rather more of Sean Paul Lockhart, do check out his porn alter-ego on the DVD box cover of Falcon's new release: Jacked.

Look for Timo Descamps in the popular film Judas Kiss which stars Charlie David.

Sunday, December 14 The Harbor Room holds their annual Christmas Customer Appreciation Party starting at 3 pm. Come on down and tell Santa what You really want for Christmas! Also a great opportunity to meet Alex Saint Pierre Our New Mr. Harbor Room and you can tell him what you want for Christmas too!

Wednesday, December 17 This Is It – will hold a flashback Wednesday from open at 3 pm till close come and see your favorite bartenders from Christmas past like the ravishing Michael Patrick McKinley and the dashing Justin Wobeck. Let them whip you up a hot toddy and you can tell them if you've been bad or good... The party will continue when the current Staff of This Is It joins in later for a bit of Christmas cheer. This Is It has finally been recognized as "The State's oldest continuously operated Gay bar, dating back to June of 1968. Congratulations and continued success as you enter year 47 of satisfying Brew City.

Jolly, Holly, Folly – ARCW's (AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin) 19th annual Holiday to-do is slated for Thursday, December 18 5:00 pm The Marcus Center 929 North Water Street. $120 to partake in 20 restaurant tastings, beer, wine, soda, and an evening of dance a night you will remember. What says Christmas more than "The Nutcracker"? Michael Pink's Milwaukee Ballet will bring this yuletide fantasy alive once more! Remember everything is beautiful at the ballet...

The next evening Friday, December 19 and Saturday, December 20 The Florentine Opera Company shares the songs of the season as only they can with "Home for the Holidays" 7:30 pm curtain. The Wayne & Kristine Lueders Florentine Opera Center 930 East Burleigh Street fmi please call 800-32-OPERA or visit: www.florentineopera.org. Always a grand time!

On Friday, December 19 come celebrate the season with the reason at The Red Star Cocktail

Club as Lance has shared with me that The Star will be shining and a fun time will be had by all! A special guest bartender, food, fun, drink specials and a Holiday Revue -- featuring the return of Miss Goldie Adams, Maple Veneer and Karen Valentine, ShowTime is 10 pm. La Cage will be ringing their Holiday bells as well the same evening so I suggest an old fashion bar crawl!

I can't think of a better way to close out 2014 and welcome 2015 than a visit to the big valley? Jacqueline Susann's best seller of 1966 "Valley of the Dolls" (a theatrical catastrophe!) will be taking place at Dale Gutzman's Off The Wall Theatre. You can take this wild trip to the Valley starting on New Year's Eve, January 1, 2, 3, 4, 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11 what a great way to start out the new year! Milwaukee Dolls Dear Ruthie, Maple Veneer and Jeremy Welter headline the cast.

To add a touch of loveliness to all occasions how about flowers? Kurt AKA KC Ray is now designing at Grande Flowers – owned and operated by Golden Blooms, LLC 1433 East Capitol Drive 414-332-3070 grande.flowers@yahoo.com/grandeflowersshorewoodwi.com Nothing makes for a better hostess gift than something blooming. Just make sure the flowers are done and that the person receiving them doesn't have to take the time to ready them, while also entertaining.

On the topic of flowers, I was at a beautiful wedding – my heartiest congratulations and best wishes to Brandon Ford Teich and Jack Ford Teich. What a joyous celebration! The lady officiating, Rev. Karen Hagen complimented the touching union, as did Mike Bader's reading and thoughtful toast. I think I got to sit at the most fun table, too - Jerry, Matt, John, Roger, Jim and those are just the names I remember – what fun we all had! Mazel!

Milwaukee legend Teddy "Honey, Honey" Quar-tuch has passed quietly into the night at a spry 90 years old. No one knew how to light up a room or share the best stories than this charming raconteur. So happy I knew him, I'm a better person for it.

Sympathies go out to Chris Daniels on the loss of his mother after a long illness.

And thrilled to report its Always Happy Hour's Andy Schaidler is getting better every day and will be able to enjoy this year's Holiday season to its full potential. I don't think anyone had a larger group of well-wishers than Andy – with all that powerful, positive energy. Who says you can't will a miracle – tis the season!

Peter Mortensen is back creating great theater! He conceived and directed "Séance, Signs of Life in Another Room". I can't wait to see it and share my findings in my next column. So happy to see the flawless venue of Montage, upstairs at La Cage utilized.

Halloween was a hoot this year, being reunited with my favorite "Witches" Rona, DeDe, and Charlotte Lorraine – talk about a coven! We haunted Hamburger Mary's enjoying Ruthie's Halloween Spooktacular!

The following night I was invited to help judge the Costume Contest at La Cage. David Whitney extended the "ask" and it was fun to judge with Peggy West and two hot studs -- Tom Landherr and Louis Williams! Dale, Dan, Patrick, Patrick, Adam, Jim, Jacob, Phil, Shelly, Jorge, Chad, Luke, Alex, and Jerome (more names here than Santa has reindeer) made sure our glasses were full – naturally. Had a fun catching-up with DJ Kelly and chatting with Kris & Michael who always make me feel so welcomed at their "Studio 54". Lady Gia hostess-ed the gloriously glamorous Illusion Show beforehand and handled the announcing of the Costume Winners – King Kong dominated! Talk about a beauty and a beast!

From Halloween to pure Heaven, what a grand time I had at Meg Kasch's dinner party. The best part of this time of the year is getting together with friends. Good conversation, beverages, food and validation! Meg – thee hostess of all there is rallied a table that could rival the Algonquin! Still wondering how I got invited! Joe Pabst, Tim Murphy, Jerry Janis, Greg Ross & his beloved Roy, Milwaukee's answer to Donna Mills, Karen Drummond and Cordially yours, all mixed together like a delicious bouillabaisse! We were treated to a feast lovingly prepared by The Red Headed Chef – Tiffany Stankiewicz – a jewel of a Gourmet! You may have seen her recently at the LGBT Wedding Expo. To engage her services act now -- she is in demand – tiffanytheredheadedchef@gmail.com or 414-5032-5320. Leave it Meg to turn a Monday into an extended weekend, providing us an evening we won't forget.

Food time, please remember Jolly, Holly, Folly this month -- and if you're looking for a quick bite -- that offers quality and quantity – great pub faire at Club Charlies in The Historic Third Ward. I simply adore the Irish Nachos! Great homemade soups -- and I can't comment on the desserts, because I'm always too full to par take! LOL

In closing this column and this year, as I opened this effort, I extend to you and yours the very best this time of the year has to offer. I so appreciate your readership and the privilege of reporting the good we do in this troubled world. As always, it's the glamour, not the grammar as I remain still Cordially yours,.

It's hard to believe the holidays are already here. I mean, I spent Easter Sunday taking Christmas lights off my trailer, and now I've got to put them up again! Between stuffing turkeys, baking cookies, sitting on Santa's lap, egging nog and decking halls, I'm already pooped out and the damn yuletide hasn't even arrived yet!

At least there's a holly-jolly load of Christmas crap going on this month. Be sure to swing by your favorite watering hole and enjoy a few libations and good cheer at their holiday parties. You can also raise a beefy toast at Hamburger Mary's. On December 4 Ruthie's Kennel Club hosts an 8:00 pm fundraiser featuring 10 crazy games of bingo, a holiday market, a celebrity guest bingo caller, an ugly Christmas sweater contest and prizes so awesome, you may want to give them to those on your shopping list instead of keeping them for yourself.

When you're not busy hitting the bars, indulging in all of the holiday festivities, be sure to check out "Valley of the Dolls" at Off the Wall Theatre. I'm starring in the hilarious parody alongside Jeremy Welter ("Whatever Happened to Baby Jane" and "Creature from the Black, Black Lagoon: The Musical"). We open on New Year's Eve with two shows, and run for a week afterward. Call 414-484-8878 for tickets as they're selling quickly. I hope to see you there!

For now, however, let's hit the Bitchin' Kitchen for some crispy Christmas cookies. Here, you'll find a basic cookie dough you can turn into two cookies. One dough, two cookies—what could be easier? I don't know, but it's time to eat good and shut up!

RUTHIE'S BITCHIN' COOKIE DOUGH

Christmas cookies are a snap with this simple recipe. Just mix up a batch of my Bitchin' Cookie Dough, and then make the Simple Christmas Slice Cookies and German Chocolate Cookies. It's that easy! One dough...two cookies. Consider this my little holiday gift to you.

2 cups butter, softened
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon almond extract
1/4 cup sweetened condensed milk
4 cups all-purpose flour
1/8 teaspoon salt

Using an electric mixer, cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Beat in the extract and the sweetened condensed milk.

In a large bowl, combine the flour and salt; gradually beat into the creamed mixture until well combined and a dough forms.

Divide dough into five 1-cup portions, rolling each portion into a log, 8-inches long. Wrap each log in plastic wrap and refrigerate for 1 hour. Use dough in Simple Christmas Slice Cookies and/or German Chocolate Cookies.

Ruthie's Sticky Note: If making the German Chocolate Cookies the same day, simply set 2 cups of dough aside and proceed with that recipe. Roll and wrap the remaining the dough for future use or for Simple Christmas Slice Cookies

Ruthie's Culinary Clues

You can freeze the dough logs for up to 3 months which is great for last minute needs, late-night snack attacks, etc. Swap out the almond extract with peppermint if you'd like...but note that the peppermint dough will not work when using the dough with German Chocolate Cookies.

SIMPLE SLICE CHRISTMAS COOKIES

These crunchy little cookies are addictive...and easy! Try them with a cup of coffee, some milk or vodka. No..I'm just kidding. I mean, who has coffee with cookies?

3 cups Ruthie's Bitchin' Cookie Dough
Jimmies, colored sugar, frosting optional

Take the dough out of the refrigerator for 5 minutes to soften for easy, consistent slicing. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Using a serrated knife, slice dough into 1/2-inch slices and set on baking sheets sprayed with nonstick spray. If decorating with jimmies or colored sugar, do so now.

Bake at 350 degrees for 10 to 15 minutes or until edges are lightly browned. Cool for 2 minutes before removing to wire racks. If decorating with frosting, do so once cookies have cooled completely.

Ruthie's Culinary Clues

Lining cookie sheets with parchment paper prevents burning and makes cleanup a snap. If your cookies are spreading too much when baking, it might be because the baking sheet is too warm from the last batch. Rinse sheets off in cold water and dry between batches if necessary. Cooling racks not only help cookies cool faster, but they help keep the texture of the bottom of the cookie intact.

GERMAN CHOCOLATE COOKIES

Yum! No one will believe these cookies came from the same dough as the slice cookies also seen here. These are crunchy cookies that make great additions to holiday platters.

2 cups Ruthie's Bitchin' Cookie Dough
3/4 cup flaked coconut, toasted
1/2 cup graham cracker crumbs
1/2 cup miniature semisweet chocolate chips
1/4 cup sweetened condensed milk
Chocolate frosting
Chopped pecans

If necessary, take the dough out of the refrigerator for 10 minutes to soften. Combine the dough, coconut, cracker crumbs, chocolate chips and milk in a large bowl. Cover and refrigerate for 1 hour or until easy to handle.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Drop dough by rounded 1/2 tablespoon onto baking sheets sprayed with nonstick spray. Bake at 350° for 15 minutes or until edges are lightly browned. Cool for 2 minutes before removing to wire racks. Frost cooled cookies and top with nuts.

Ruthie's Culinary Clues

Toast coconut in a skillet over low to medium heat. Keep stirring until coconut is brown and crunchy. Feel free to omit the frosting and pecans if you'd like. These cookies great with a dusting of powdered sugar or served plain.

Have a recipe to share with Ruthie? Send it to her at DearMsRuthie@yahoo.com. If she published your recipe, you'll receive a free Bitchin' Kitchen T-shirt.

Well we are back for the holiday season, I hope you all didn't get too fat from all that turkey you had at thanksgiving. Who am I kidding you probably just ate a bunch and fell asleep. (You know that reminds me of some of my friend's love lives.) I think I have now insulted enough of my readers so let's get on with the piercing of the month. Seeing as at the end of this month you're all going to be doing your hardest to get some on New Year's Eve. I figured that I should talk about some genital piercings, the frenum in particular. So let's get on with it!

If you remember what a frenum is from the last time I wrote about them then you can feel free to skip ahead to the next paragraph but you might miss a really good joke that I haven't thought of yet. The frenum is a piercing that goes through the skin along the shaft of the penis. Contrary to popular belief it does not go through the shaft of the penis. This piercing is usually done with a barbell but rings can be put in as well. It is usually better to wait until the piercing is healed before putting a ring in. See aren't you glad that you read all the way through that, yea so I lied there wasn't a really good joke in there but get ready I'm sure one will pop in my head any minute now. Well until that happens lets move on, shall we?

Taking care of a frenum is extremely easy, and if you have read any of my past columns you will already know how to take care of this, but for that 1% of people who haven't here we go again. It doesn't take a lot of time to do but is still very important just wash the piercing with antibacterial soap at the very end of your shower. That's right the end you know after you have "cleaned" your privates for that half hour you claim to. So that's about it on how to take care of it, now let's get onto the part you really want to know about, how they feel during sex.

Okay you horn dogs we have reached the part of the story where you get to grab your dick and double click. During sex the frenum(s) act as a giant speed bump on your dick. When the speed bump grabs the walls of whatever you may be screwing it holds for a split second causing a little bit of tension and thus causing more pleasurable feelings. Also, as with most piercings once a body part has been pierced it becomes almost super sensitive. So remember that all you my hillbilly readers, good 'ole Bessie is going to feel a little different the next time your standing on the bucket trying to f#@k it!

Well I think I pretty much ran this column dry and since I see that I have a little more room for some reader mail let's get to it.

Brent,

First I want to tell you that I have been reading your column for a while and I really like it. So on to my question, I have been trying to figure out a X-mas present for my lover and he is really into piercings. The problem is that I don't know anything about piercings their sizes or anything! So how can I get him something that will be right and he doesn't have to return. — Bob

Well Bob, first I want to tell you that there is not a single body jewelry store that will accept refunds that I know of. So you're going to have to make sure that what you get is what he wants. A way around this is to take him to a couple of stores and see which ones he likes, then go back to the store at a later date and get what he picked out. Of course you could always just do the easy thing and get a gift certificate. Thanks for the question.

Well it seems we have run out of room again. Don't forget to keep those email coming Avantgarde@voyager.net Just make sure you put "Skin and Steel" in the subject line so you don't get lumped into spam. So I guess this is good bye for the year 2014, I hope you all have a great Holiday with friends and family and I hope Santa gives you that little something extra in your stocking this year, or is that a little something extra in your rear. (I can never remember.) Have a great new year and I hope you all remember at least most of the night, and don't forget to drink a toast to a healthy and cheerful 2015!!! HAPPY NEW YEAR!!!

(Now where is that damn egg nog??)
